Sprint PCS Info's database was damaged this evening, we restored it with a backup. The cause? Some test code we were running went really, really bad.

The good news is, we test code on our blog and not our main site's server. This means that only a couple of blog posts were lost, and we have re-posted anything relevant.

So what code were we testing? Some add-ons to Joomla 1.5 in preparation for the future migration to that code-base from the existing Joomla 1.0. Now, when will Apple make Time Machine for MySQL?
